The Daily Intelligencer is Delivered by Carriers in Wheeling and adjacent towns at 15 cents per week.

[Entered at the Postoffice at Wheeling, W. Va., as second-class matter.]

WHEELING, MAY 29, 1889.

PERSONS going out of town for the summer can have the DAILY INTELLIGENCER mailed to them for 65 cents per month. The address of the paper will be changed as often as desired.

Now that the Chicago police know all about the Cronin murder the hangman may as well get his working tools in order.

The ping tobacco pool is broken, and the jobbers are plugging away on their own account, selling at such prices as suit them. A recent act of the Missouri Legislature against combinations did the business.

It is strange that the Postoffice Department, having notified Mr. Cowden of his appointment as Postmaster at Wheeling, has not notified Postmaster Simpson of his removal. Wheeling is hardly big enough for two Postmasters.

It was the good yacht of Mr. Singler, a good Democrat and proprietor of the Philadelphia Record, which here the good President went last Saturday. The hostiles got in their work on the supposition that it was the wicked yacht of the wicked Wansmaker.

Mr. Randall reads the newspapers. Hence Mr. Randall is "onto" Mr. Cleveland's little game. The Pennsylvania may contribute to the defeat of the New Yorker, but he cannot be nominated himself. His party will not in his time swallow so big a dose of Protection.

GRAND ARMY men are quoted as complaining that President Harrison, after accepting an invitation to be present at the Grant memorial services in Washington, last Sunday night, went fishing on Saturday and did not return until Monday. It is inconceivable that the President did this. If he did his action will be resented by more than the Grand Army men.

No Free Trade for the South.

There are in the South some minds that do not take kindly to the bait of the Free Traders. They do not see prosperity for the southern iron industry through such a tariff as shall close the iron furnaces of the North and leave the South to compete with the British product in the American Market. The Birmingham Age-Herald, whose article on the subject is elsewhere quoted, takes a practical view of the question. It is the view which turns the South away from Free Trade.

A Queer Defense.

A suit involving a novel point has just been tried at Pittsburgh. A man and his wife were crossing a railroad track while a train was approaching. The man crossed safely, but discovering that his wife was in danger, went to her rescue and succeeded in pushing her off the track and saving her. The husband was struck by the train and injured, for which he asked damages.

The railroad set up the defense that the husband was guilty of contributory negligence, having voluntarily rushed into danger. The jury did not take this view, and the man got a verdict of $1,000. No jury will ever approve the cold defense set up by that railroad company, and no jury should.

The Cleveland Banner Unfurled.

The unmistakable meaning of the big dinner to Mr. Cleveland and his speech on that occasion is, that Mr. Cleveland's banner is unfurled for 1892. From this on it will be the field against Cleveland. Every other aspirant will have to consider whether he can make a combination that will beat Cleveland. Every other aspirant will try to beat Cleveland. On this point the whole opposition will agree.

Can Mr. Cleveland stand so long and determined a warfare? The big prize has been missed by being too early in the field. But suppose that Mr. Cleveland should weather the storm and land safely in the harbor of the National Convention before all the rest of them? What then? Can he be elected? Will he have a better chance than we had in 1888? And if so, why? What makes him stronger than he was in 1888? What can he do to gain strength for 1892 where he was weak in 1888?

Mr. Cleveland's tariff policy stands. He cannot wipe that out. Will the country three years hence demand Free Trade? If not Mr. Cleveland cannot be elected. Mr. Cleveland received in 1888 votes which he cannot get in 1892 unless the Republicans throw away their opportunity. President Harrison and the Republican Congress hold in their hands the result of the next Presidential election.

Bank Directors' Responsibility.

The City Bank of Scranton, Pennsylvania, has been obliged to close its doors because its cashier was too free with its funds. In the alleged assets of the bank is an item called the cashier's "shortage," amounting to $135,000. This is what broke the bank.

Now that the cat is out of the bag and the depositors want $350,000 which they placed there because they had confidence in the management, the directors are very sorry about it all. If they had known what was going on they never would have allowed it. This is easy to believe. But why did not the directors know what was going on? It was their privilege and their business to know, and the depositors thought they did know.

Bank directors often say it is impossible to know all the ins and outs of a bank's business. Doubtless this is true, from which it results that much must be left to the intelligence and integrity of the cashier. At the same time it certainly is impossible for directors to know whether a cashier is systematically plundering the bank. This is precisely what the Scranton directors did not know, and it is what directors do not know until the break comes.

Any dishonest man might make a grab and leave between night and morning; but this is not the way the Scranton cashier went about it. His method presumed that the directors would continue not to direct, and in this he was not mistaken.

As Seen From a Distance.

This from the Philadelphia Press sums up the situation with terseness and accuracy: The alleged gubernatorial investigation in West Virginia drags its tiresome length along. General Goff displays a remarkable degree of pertinacity for there is no doubt of the desire and intention of the Democrats to retain control of the State Government at all hazards. General Goff has the right and the correct returns on his side, but this counts for little in Democratic West Virginia politics.

The Democratic Legislature will not declare Goff the Governor. Every day and every dollar devoted to the investigation is so much wasted, except as it helps to dig deeper the pit into which the Democracy of West Virginia is about to tumble.

NORTHERN AND SOUTHERN IRON.

The South Doesn't want to Kill the North and Go Shares with England.

Birmingham, Ala., Age-Herald.

Pig iron can be made in the South, it is now admitted, as cheaply as in England. The freight charges on English pig being for many part of this country higher than the freight charges on Southern pig, the latter has nothing to fear from competition. High or low tariff, Southern pig is bound to undersell all other, the only trouble the high tariff makes for Southern iron interests being the fact that it insures the Pennsylvania and Ohio pig a market when iron is in great demand. Strike off the tariff on iron, and those States would hardly sell a pound, owing to the high cost of their raw materials, while the South would supply the whole country, except perhaps a few points where English pig would come in to supply special needs. The harm the tariff is doing Southern iron interests, therefore, is that it is delaying their development. As matters are the South is rapidly going to the front. The cut of pig recently by a Pennsylvania firm to $16.50 is a sign of distress. We have Mr. Carnegie's authority for it that the furnaces of his late "cannot afford to pay the prices demanded for ore and run at the rates now ruling for pig iron." He accordingly advises a general stoppage unless workmen will consent to a 20 per cent reduction of wages. A better thing for him and his workmen would be to do as many others in his position are doing—to go South.

The Montgomery Advertiser copies the above from the Baltimore Sun and gives it a half column of approving comment. It is queer sort of logic. Why should the South wish to admit to the American market British pig iron that can compete with the products of its furnaces in the place of Northern pig iron which, according to the above, is delaying their development? The South should invite England to come in and help her conquer the American market then would the South some day be like the ancient Britons who invited Saxon invasion to defend them against the Picts and Scots.

If the Southern furnaces can't attain the prestige that is prophesied for them by virtue of the natural advantage they have over the North, it will profit them nothing to admit foreign competition for that purpose.

It is really puzzling why such papers as the Sun and the Advertiser should continue to insist on the reduction or removal of the duty on pig iron when they admit that it is delaying their development. The price of that commodity as low in this country as the producers can possibly afford to sell it. If the tariff does not enhance the price of pig iron to the consumer, then it is a tariff for revenue only, and that is the tariff on which these papers have all the time stood.

But as the Age-Herald has more than once asserted, Southern iron men entertain no thought of destroying the iron industry of the North. Of something more than 7,000,000 tons of pig iron produced in the United States last year, 6,000,000 came from the North. The men engaged in iron making there had long experience in the business and turn out a fine article. They also have unlimited capital and the South is still poor. It is folly to suppose that all the furnaces producing these 6,000,000 tons of iron are going to be speedily brought to close up, and, in our opinion, it would be a great calamity to the country if they should.

What the iron trade of the United States needs is an extension of its territory—not a cutting down of its product. The South, with the proper tariff, and a profitable market for all of her iron in the countries to the south of us and leave the North in undisturbed possession of its own field.

THE CHAMPION OARMEN, TEEMER & HANLAN, USE NO OTHER REMEDY FOR Sprains, Strains, Soreness, Stiffness, Aches and Pains. Sold by Druggists and Dealers.

St. En. Brute?

Monroe County, Washington (D.C.)

In its recently developed character of the Hyena of Journalism, the Wheeling Register, the State, the city of Wheeling and the Democratic party—Dealing amongst the putrid rotteness of slander slurs, divorce proceedings, and devoting column after column to the sickening details of the foulest scandals it panders to the morbid appetite of human nature and outlives the notorious Police Gazette. Its miserable wretchedness of its conduct upon the ground that it is a "purveyor of the news" and that certain other newspapers are "no better," is so shameful that it further damns the Register in the esteem of gentlemen. Unless the morals of the Register are speedily improved, no reputable man can afford to allow it entrance into his household.

Parody on "The Bridge."

I stood on the bridge at midnight, as drunk as a son-of-a-gun. Two moons rose over the city where there ought to have been but one. I could not see their bright reflections in the water under me, and I experienced a feeling of wonder and great curiosity. If only one had been there I would not have been in doubt, but what two moons were doing, I could not tell. The tide was slowly ebbing, I could hear the waters roll, as I stood in the wavering shadows to hide from the night patrol. How often, oh! how often, in the days of old lang syne, I have tried to stand on the bridge at midnight every time. But to-night I was hot and restless, and my mind was full of cares, and the walk that lay before me was more than I could bear. I had no latch key with me, and I would have to sit in the doorway, as oft I had done before. I'd have to sit in the doorway in agony and in fear, till a voice said from the window, "Did lodge hold late my dear?" So to-night I stood there, and I did not get a word from the window, till a cop came along with a wagon and invited me to ride.

Climate for Consumptives.

The several climates of Florida, Colorado and California have each been much prescribed for sufferers from lung disease, yet thousands of the natives in those states die of this fatal malady. A far more reliable remedy is to be had in every drug store in the land, and one which is sold by druggists, under the manufacturers' positive guarantee that, if taken in time and given a fair trial, it will effect a cure, or money paid for it will be refunded. We refer to the famous, and long-remembered, for consumption (or lung-rot) known as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the only remedy for this terrible disease possessed of such superior curative properties as to warrant its manufacturers in selling it under a guarantee.

Don't nag, bark, and blow, and spit, but use Dr. Sarg's Catarrh Remedy. Oil druggists.

FRED. BROWN'S Ginger, the genuine, is warranted to possess in a concentrated form all the valuable properties of pure ginger. It is a powerful tonic, and on trial will be found an excellent medicine, which no family should be without. At first class Druggists.

Convincing Proof.

In many instances it has been proven that B. B. (Boatman Blood Balm), made by Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga., will cure blood poison in its worst phases, even when all other treatment fails. A. P. Brunson, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "I had 24 running ulcers on one leg and 6 on the other, and felt greatly prostrated. I believe I actually swallowed a barrel of medicine, in vain efforts to cure the disease. With little hope I finally acted on the urgent advice of a friend, and got a bottle of B. B. B. I experienced a change, and my despondency was somewhat dispelled. I kept using it until I had taken sixteen bottles, and all the ulcers, rheumatism and all other horrors of blood poison have disappeared, and at last I am sound and well again, after an experience of twenty years of torture."

Word, Word, Word, Word. "My disease was pronounced a fatal form of blood poison. My face, head and shoulders were a mass of corns, the disease began to eat my skin, and I felt bones. My bones ached; my kidneys were deranged, I lost heat and strength, and life became a burden. All I could do was to lie in bed, and I must surely die, but nevertheless, when I had used ten bottles of B. B. B. I felt a change, and I am now as well as ever. I have now been well over twelve months."
